STATEMENT OF THE PROBLEM:

The political parties are missing inner democracy which keeps many perspective leaders deprived of their rights. Some political parties indulge in the use of money and muscle power for winning elections. The use of money and muscle power hamper development and it is against the spirit of democracy. And many peoples are also accepting the bribe which is given by a political party to win the election.

I. INTRODUCTION:

A political party is an alliance of like-minded those who paintings collectively to win elections and control of the authorities. Political parties compete in opposition to each other for political strength and for the potential to place their philosophies and regulations into effect.

Many citizens show party identification, despite the fact that they do not officially belong to a party. So a voter may declare to be a Democrat, even though she does no longer pay dues, maintain a membership card, or technically belong to that political party. Different electorate see themselves as independents: those voters do no longer belonging to any political party and they willingly vote for the nice candidate regardless of that character's party identification association. In this paper I am going to political parties role and functions for the people's development. And what are all the outcomes in which people expect from the political parties.

OBJECTIVES OF THE STUDY:

1. To analyse the functions of political parties in Tamilnadu with reference to the public opinion.
2. To study the role of political parties for the people's development
3. To analyse about the people's expectation that how should a political party function for the enhancement of the state.

HYPOTHESIS:

NULL HYPOTHESIS:

There is no significant difference in the role of political parties and their functions in Tamilnadu.

ALTERNATIVE HYPOTHESIS :

There is significant difference in the role of political parties and their functions in Tamilnadu.

FUNCTIONS OF POLITICAL PARTIES:

1. It makes the working of parliamentary authorities possible. A parliament consists of the representatives of the humans. The political events organise these representatives on party traces. The citizens chooses their representatives on the basis of their party affiliation. The party which receives most of the people of votes bureaucracy the authorities and runs the kingdom and the opposite events inside the legislature represent the opposition and try to discover fault with the authorities, therefore making it extra accountable. Inside the absence of political parties, the elected representatives may work at pass functions simply making the formation of a central authority or competition an impossibility.

2. Political parties formulate public regulations. Each political party fights the election to achieve its goals integrated in their political manifesto. Quickly after the election the majority party forming the authorities seeks to formulate its rules of administration on the idea of guarantees made within the election manifesto. Those rules are made keeping in mind the interest of preferred public. The maximum essential goal at the back of maximum rules remains the betterment of general situation. Apart from this, they make guidelines on countrywide safety, internal law and order, and so on. Except, each political party has its very own ideology. It is assured that most people political party gets the mandate of the citizens to put in force its own political programme.

3. Political events educate Public opinion. Events in any gadget of presidency teach, formulate and arrange public opinion. Additionally they help in the boom of the extent of political attention of common residents, who in any other case don't have any time to peruse and examine issues of the nation. The political parties of their effort to come towards the human beings organise public rallies, conferences, press conferences on essential issues and make their views clear. The common people is made privy to the economic, social, and political situation most of the people is made aware about their balloting rights. This affords the common human beings with an opportunity to analyse the professionals and cons of various vital troubles. This technique ends in organise and formulate public opinion on crucial issues. The not unusual folks that in any other case don't have any time to dedicate to politics immensely gain by using those conferences, and so on. and understand specific aspects of the simple issues involved in administration.

4. Political parties provide political balance. The political parties in more than one manner unite, simplify and stabilised the political method of the USA. The destabilising forces of localism, regionalism, phase, interests and geographical conditions are tackled by using political parties through making these parts in their party ideology accordingly pacifying the disintegrating forces and inducing brotherly love. The political parties specifically perform the features of ‘aggregation of interests’. besides the political parties in a representative democracy play a superb role in retaining the stableness with the aid of appearing their roles within the legislature. the majority party paperwork the government and the other small events in the competition.

The party in power has to conduct itself very responsibly. The competition of political party keeps a near eye on the running of the ruling party. because any unwise pass on their part might throw it off the electricity and assist the competition (parties) to take over the reins of administration. opposition no longer simply criticises the authorities; it additionally offers an opportunity software and opportunity government in the eventuality of any disaster within the government. As such it contributes to the stability of the government. as a result, healthful competition could be very critical for the success of democracy.

5. It permits in the recruitment of leaders:: The critical function of any political party is to recruit men of integrity, letters, action, leadership to its fold as members and put together them for election in destiny. due to the fact it is these participants of political parties who propagate the parties ideologies, talk the burning problems and preserve conferences and press conferences to mobilise public aid. it's miles those leaders again who contest in the election and form government if elected to electricity. Such leaders being drawn from public existence are expected to recognise expectations of the commonplace human beings and formulate public rules thus. events constantly get recognition through their leaders.

IV. CONCLUSION:

According to this survey,from the people's point of view the political parties should not give money to people during elections and should not do corruption in any ways.And majority of them tells that Tamilnadu is not much as developed so it must be developed economically, socially and so on.And the education quality must be enhanced and many educational related schemes can also be implemented to improve the quality of education .And the liquor shops should be reduced to save the life of the people's who are addicted to it.In my point of view fresh politicians should participate in upcoming election.They should not get bribes on any situation.They should implement schemes for people's benefit,and the schemes must be easily approachable for the people.Even though the schemes are implemented for the people's welfare, it is the duty of every citizen of the state to follow it and support it .Then only it cherishes the politicians to implement new plans.The above changes may change the development of the state upside down in all departments.
